5. Business Arising

5.1 Self-Evaluation Committee

Presented by: Robert Thomson

The Senate self-evaluation summary and results were completed, however additional time was required for review of the Committee's recommendations to Senate. Accordingly, the summary and results, along with the recommendations, will be brought to the September meeting.

5.2 Academic Continuity

Presented by: Lauren Styles

Lauren Styles, VP Academic and Provost provided an update on academic continuity, including some of the following highlights:

- The University continues to move forward on academic continuity topics with the current primary focus on Fall courses, including the necessary guidelines and practices for safe working and learning environments for in-person and mixed mode classes.
- In the spring with the pivot to remote adapted learning, students were provided with an opportunity to request, through the Registrar's Office, a credit or no credit grade. Approximately 560 requests were received from students to date with a deadline of August 31, 2020.
- There were a number of adaptations made at the course level from approved course outlines into syllabi for individual courses, with the substantive changes being the mode of delivery (remote/adapted) and adjustments to assignments and grading profiles.
- This was our largest enrolment in summer term to date. Although there were some technology challenges, these were worked through, and appreciation was noted for the volume of work involved.
- As a small number of courses were suspended during the spring semester, there are some students who have not yet been able to resume their course work (practicum type courses). Deans are working with program faculty to determine next steps of contingency planning and further actions to be put in place in order for those students to complete their course(s).

- A memorandum has been developed, and will be distributed shortly to Faculties outlining the process for approvals of temporary changes for fall term course syllabi as a result of COVID-19 adaptations. With final exam scheduling and Spring timetabling deadlines in the near future, the current approaches will be the planned ones (online exams unless there is dean approval for in-person based on rationale, and preliminary planning for mainly on-line courses for Spring term.
- The detailed work that was taken up by Faculties and the Registrar's Office was acknowledged and appreciated especially in getting student registration up and available on time based on the University's schedule of dates.
- In terms of planning into the fall, the University is working through timelines in relation to scheduling and planning to do more of what we are doing until information on the current status is provided.
- In the context of remote adapted teaching and learning environment, the University is focussed primarily on a remote approach, with about 80% of courses that are fully online and about 20% of courses in mixed modes and/or in person.
- Although not yet finalized, CTE is drafting additional statements for course syllabi about online learning, reinforcing student code of conduct, as well as privacy considerations. This will be shared out with faculty and technology solutions will be utilized where possible (e.g., having statements in e-learn)

8. Other Reports

8.1 Senate Chair

Paul Dangerfield provided the Chair's report, including the following highlights:

- The University recently received the Provincial Go Forward Plan from government. Once this was received, the University was then able to begin work on our own plans which includes the overall resumption and safety plan as well as being assigned a representative from WorkSafe BC. Work to date includes implementing physical and safety precautions and measures, and developing policies and practices that are needed to be put in place. As well, the University continues to work on protocols and supports in technology and infrastructure. This has been a significant amount of work in preparing for the transition and the campus community was acknowledged and thanked for their work. The approach being taken is that the University needs to be prepared for an iterative approach and make decisions and may need to pivot one way or another. As such, the campus needs to be understanding and supportive recognizing that these are unusual circumstances.
- Enrolments are better than anticipated, and the next three weeks will give a better indication of actual numbers. The class registrations are good and the University is seeing higher course registrations for domestic students than in the past. As a result work is underway to respond to the enrolments and how to manage the impact to the University from an operational point of view and budget.
- University Relations was acknowledged for looking at what the University could do to support students. A campaign called CapU Cares was created in which the University went out to donors and in a short period of time raised approximately $400,000.

Senate Self-Evaluation Survey 2020

Committee Members

Robert Thomson (Chair), Stephen Williams, Oscar Blue, Kyle A. Guay, Debbie Schachter.

Recognition

The Committee thanks Jamal Taghavimehr (IR) for his assistance in compiling and summarizing the survey responses as outlined in the Full Summary Report.

Purpose of the Survey

The survey utilizes a self-evaluation approach in order to determine Senators' perceptions of the effectiveness of the organization and functioning of Senate, and to evaluate their role in relation to the various committees and the university. The survey results provide a basis for the Senate Self-Evaluation Committee to make recommendations to increase the effectiveness of the Senate and its committees.

Data Collection

A link to the survey was made available to Senators between April 30th and May 22nd. Despite reminders by email, and also verbally during the May Senate meeting, only 20 responses (55.5%) were received during that timeframe. As a result, the deadline was extended until May 24th and once more until May 26th.

Participation Rate

This year a total of 25 surveys were received from the 36 members of the Senate. The response rate of 69.4% was down significantly from last years' 78% (28/36). There was a 56% response rate in 2018 and a 67% response rate in 2017.

Changes to the 2020 Survey

The committee used the same survey format and questions as last year.

Overview of Survey Results - Key Findings

The primary concern revealed in this year's survey is, notwithstanding the extraordinary challenges due to COVID, the difficulty in convincing Senators to submit the survey on time and the decreased final participation rate. A low response rate (under 90%) means that there is less confidence that the overall results represent the views of the Senate as a whole, and not just the views of a majority of its members. It also means that outlier responses are given relatively more importance than they may otherwise deserve. That being said, the committee feels that the survey results do provide a reliable basis for making recommendations.

Overall, the survey results indicate that Senators are clear about their role and obligations: as members of the Senate (agree, strongly agree: 92% versus 96.4% in 2019 and 90% in 2018); as to the University Act, (agree, strongly agree: 100% in 2020, 100% in 2019, 90% in 2018) and; as to their role and responsibilities with respect to advice given to the Board about academic governance (agree, strongly agree: 96%). Concerns were expressed regarding: the difference between voting & non-voting members; of what constitutes 'governance, and: differentiating between academic governance and operations.

Highlights: Policy review; Agenda; Senate Sub-Committees; Communications; Academic Governance; Orientation & Senate Meetings Issues

A notable change from 2019 is once again in regard to whether the Senate is effective in its' review of policies. This year 100% of respondents agreed or strongly agreed with this statement compared to 64.28% in 2019 and 85% in 2018. However, only 76% expressed agreement that the Senate is effective in identifying areas for policy development.

There appears to be a lack of clarity regarding the agenda. While 84% of respondents agree/agree strongly that they are aware how the agenda is set, 38% disagree/strongly disagree or don't know about being comfortable in bringing new items to Senate and 20% disagree/strongly disagree or don't know in terms of being comfortable in making a Request for Information to be brought back to future meetings.

There is unanimous agreement on the part of respondents in terms of clarity regarding the areas of responsibility of Senate sub-committees (93% in 2019 and 90% in 2018). Positive responses were also received for the Senate Curriculum Committee (96%); Academic Planning & Program Review Committee (92%) and; By-law Policy & Procedure Committee (92%).

In terms of promoting effective communication with the university community, there is near unanimous agreement that the both the Senate and the Senate Curriculum Committee clearly communicate their mandate to the university community (96% agree/strongly agree). However, there is less consensus among respondents regarding communication from the Academic Planning and Program Review Committee (80% agree/strongly agree) and the Budget Advisory Committee (76% agree/strongly agree).

In addition, a strong majority of respondents (84% agree/strongly agree) feel that Senate meetings do provide effective discussion of academic governance issues facing the university, but there is less agreement (76% agree/strongly agree) in terms of whether the Senate is effective in properly utilizing input from its constituencies. Further, 80% feel that the Senate is not a rubber stamp and that members are inclusive of others' points of view (88%) and have good listening skills (96%).

Orientation and Training of Senators

32% of respondents reported as being new Senators versus 57% in 2019 and 30% in 2018. Overall, 76% found orientation to be effective and 76% found orientation to be thorough. However, it should be noted that these percentages reflect the views of all respondents and not just new senators.

Organization & Effectiveness of Meetings

Overall, opinions in regard to the procedures, organization, and participation of members in Senate meetings are very positive.

Recommendations

1. The Self-Evaluation Committee requests feedback from Senators as to how to improve the timeliness and participation rate of Senators in the survey process.

a) Given the response rate is lower than 100% of Senators, what would distributing the survey in March result in a higher response rate?

b) Does a Senator's role or voting status on Senate have an impact on why they chose not to complete?

2. Senators are reminded that they can bring forward items for discussion in the 'other business' portion of meetings.

3. The Senate Policy & Procedures Committee should brief the Senate on its by-law policy development procedures.

4. Committees of the Senate should review the individual survey comments pertaining to their purview and action where appropriate, in particular where a consistent theme is evident.

Advising the Board

The Senate is clear about its role and obligations under the University Act.

I am clear about my role and responsibilities as a member of the Senate.

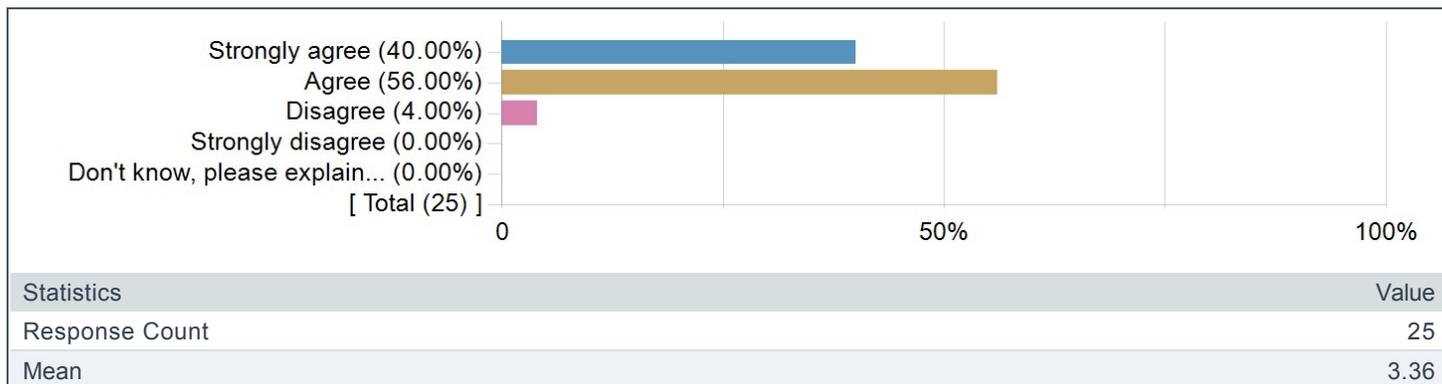

The Senate is providing relevant advice to the Board about the university's academic governance.

Please provide any additional information regarding the advice the Senate provides to the Board about academic governance.

Survey Group
It is helpful having a board representative attend Senate meetings, and in turn have our Senate Vice–Chair attend board meetings.
I think it is important that someone from the BOG attend every Senate meeting so they can provide any required context for their fellow BOG members when making decisions based on Senate recommendations.
Part of governance is approving academic developments and as such I think it is important for the Board to gain more of an awareness of the programs Capilano offers
With most Senators in their second year it seems like we have a better understanding of our role
There seems to be a bit of a history of Senate overreach and while it still arises from time to time, it seems to be less frequent and more openly discussed (regarding boundaries) than previously.
As I am a new Senator, I do not have an answer to that question.

The Senate is clear about its role and responsibilities with respect to academic governance.

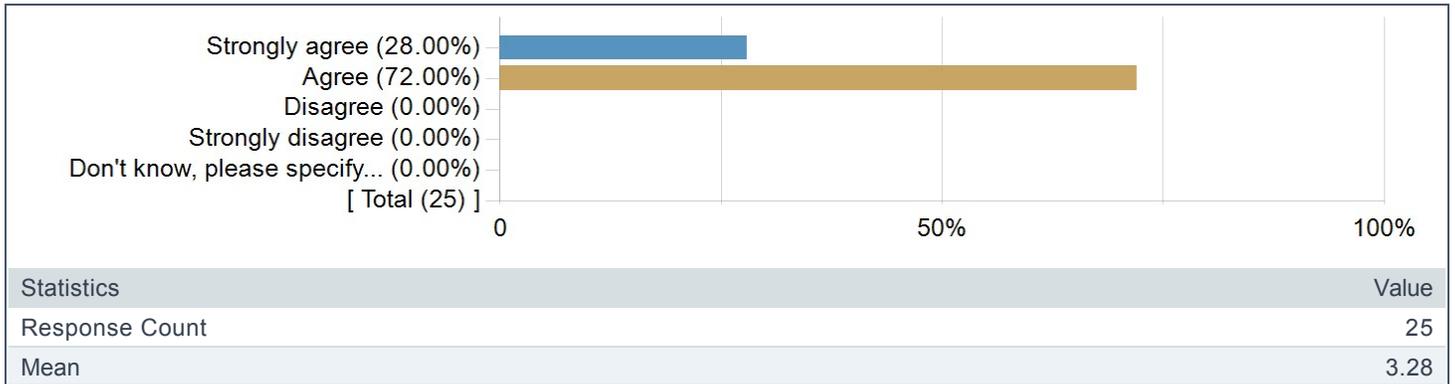

Please provide any additional comments about the Senate's role and responsibilities regarding academic governance.

Survey Group
The could be clarity about senators role/difference for voting versus non voting members.
Senate members could benefit from a workshop on Robert's Rules to improve academic governance.
Sometimes Senate is timid. I think we could question more or open up conversations about new ideas or developments
The definition of "academic governance" needs to be more clearly defined for many senators.
Continued focus on literacy of the Universities Act with special purpose teaching universities will strengthen this. At times, there are discussion of operations that are not relevant or appropriate at the Senate (individual perspectives that come from the member's 'location'/role at the university)
As I am a new Senator, I do not have an answer to that question.

Establishing Policy

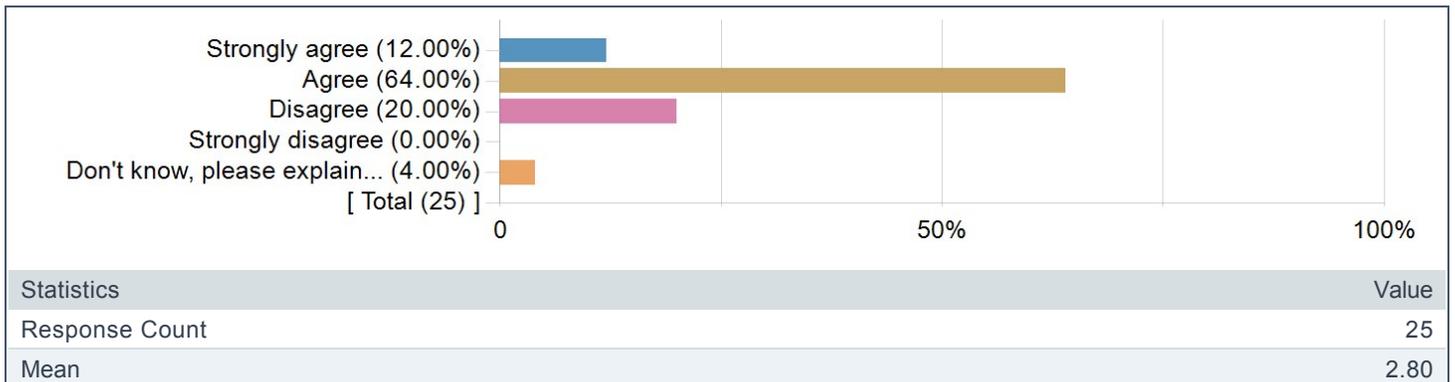

The Senate is effective in its review of policies.

Please provide any additional comments about the effectiveness of the Senate's review of policies.

Survey Group
With the growth of the Policy office, I believe this area will see continued improvement. Over the next few months, I believe it would be helpful to develop a chart that prioritizes policies in line for review. It would also be helpful to develop a "handbook" that provides boilerplate language and common strategies in policy wording and development. It will help everyone moving forward as membership on Senate changes.
The members of this committee are keenly dedicated and effective in their work.
More scrutiny of curricula and other items brought in front of SCC need deeper thought at the SCC level; by the time these items get to Senate, it is often difficult to flag something that might be questionable.
In recent years so many new policies are being developed, it is difficult to be truly thorough in review of all of them.
There has been effective work in reviewing and approving policies through Senate in recent years.
Additional effectiveness can occur with the policy and procedure committee and to have a proponent for each Senate policy (administrative responsible or designate), rather than the chair of the sub committee bring forward new or revised policy/procedures.
As I am a new Senator, I do not have an answer to that question.

The Senate is effective in identifying areas for policy development.

Please provide any additional comments about the effectiveness of the Senate in identifying areas for policy development.

Survey Group
I don't recall Senate making suggestions regarding policy development. Policies appear in the agenda whenever the Policy and By-Law Committee puts them on the agenda. They don't seem to be driven by Senate.
It is unclear how policies/procedures are brought before the Bylaws Committee (order of importance, need for a rush approval, etc.)
I don't see evidence of Senate participating in identifying areas for policy development. I feel like that is done somewhere else and policies are handed to Senate for processing. I may be mistaken about this.
Over the last year this has not been visible.
As I am a new Senator, I do not have an answer to that question.

Please provide any additional comments about the effectiveness of the Senate Sub-Committees.

Survey Group

Jacqui and Tally have provided a wealth of information to SBAC – this amount of communication on financial administration is unprecedented – the new Senior Academic Leadership group is more transparent and communicative. Goals are clearly outlined and strategized. It serves all the sub-committees well because there are larger overriding goals and themes to help focus the work.

For the Bylaws Committee, it would be helpful if the template for policies or procedures were more effectively set out so the Committee doesn't need to point out corrections to use of language (the University's style guide) or formatting, for example. Time could be better spent on the actual content.

For the Budget committee, it seems that some basic knowledge of organizational finance and budgets would be helpful to orient those committee members who do not have budget or financial experience.

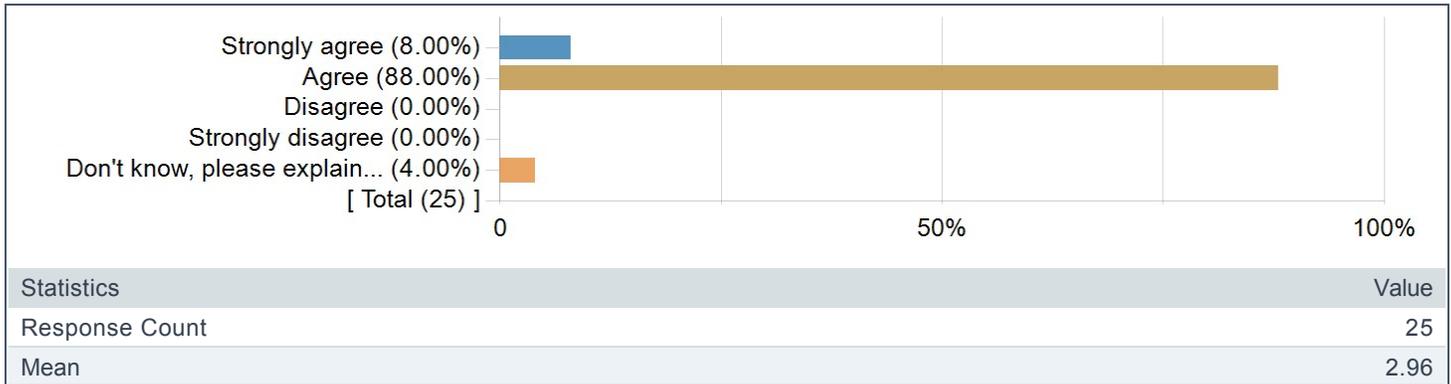

Each standing committee should do an annual review of terms of reference (TOR) with a goal to continue to evolve these as needed/necessary. SAPPRC has general TOR that could be more specific and understand they have been under discussion for possible revision (and needs to be aligned with overall duties and responsibilities of Senate (to carry out the functions and bring forward relevant recommendation to Senate)

As I am a new Senator, I do not have an answer to that question.

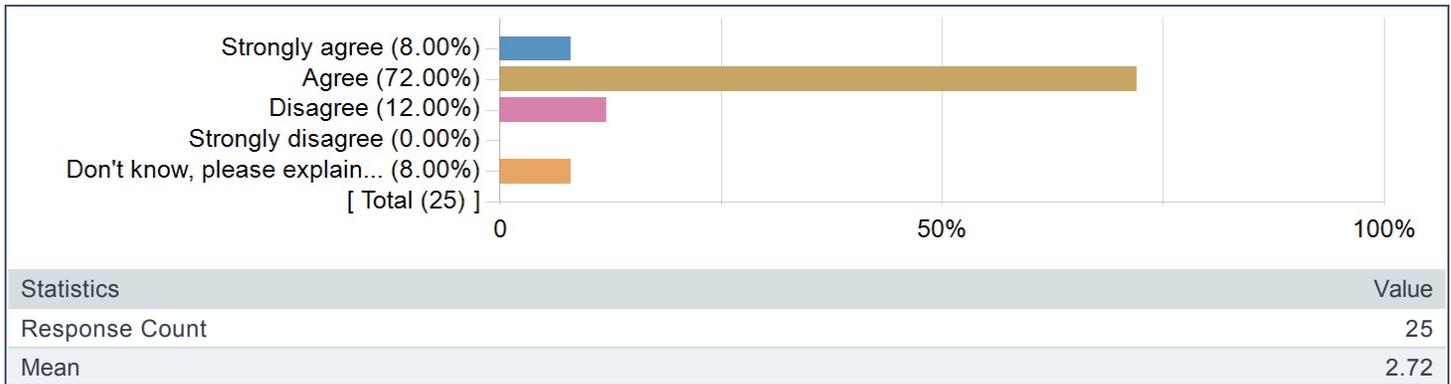

The rewriting of university policy is an ongoing process which has been effective.

Promoting Effective Communication with the University Community

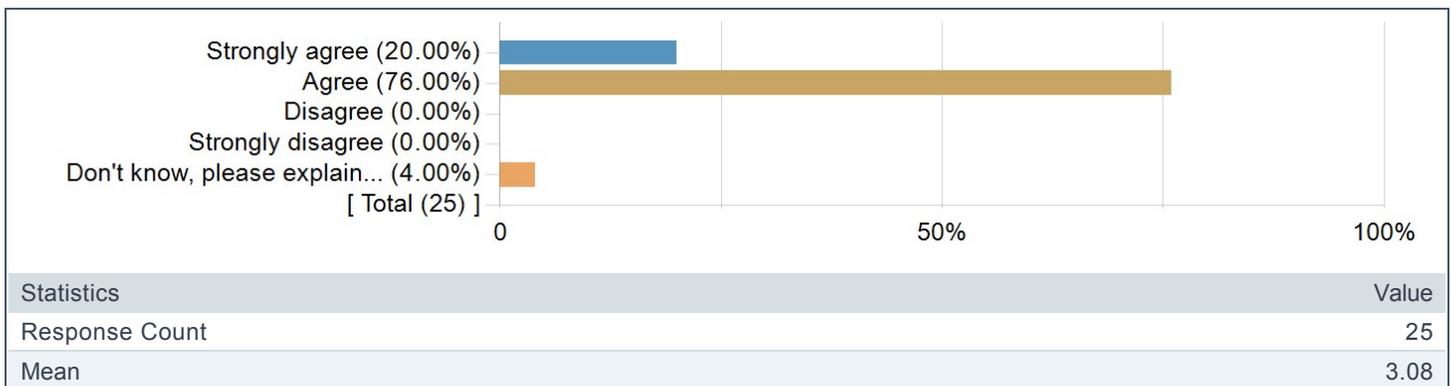

The Senate clearly communicates its mandate to the university community.

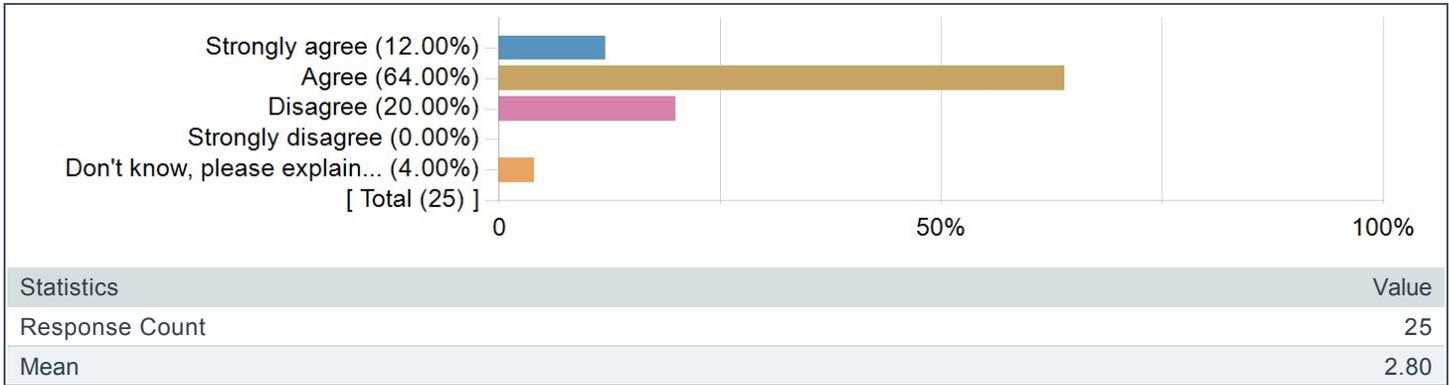

The processes of the Senate Academic Planning and Program Review Committee (SAPPRC) are clear and well communicated to the university community.

The processes of the Senate Curriculum Committee (SCC) are clear and well communicated to the university community.

The processes of the Senate Budget Advisory Committee (SBAC) are clear and well communicated to the university community.

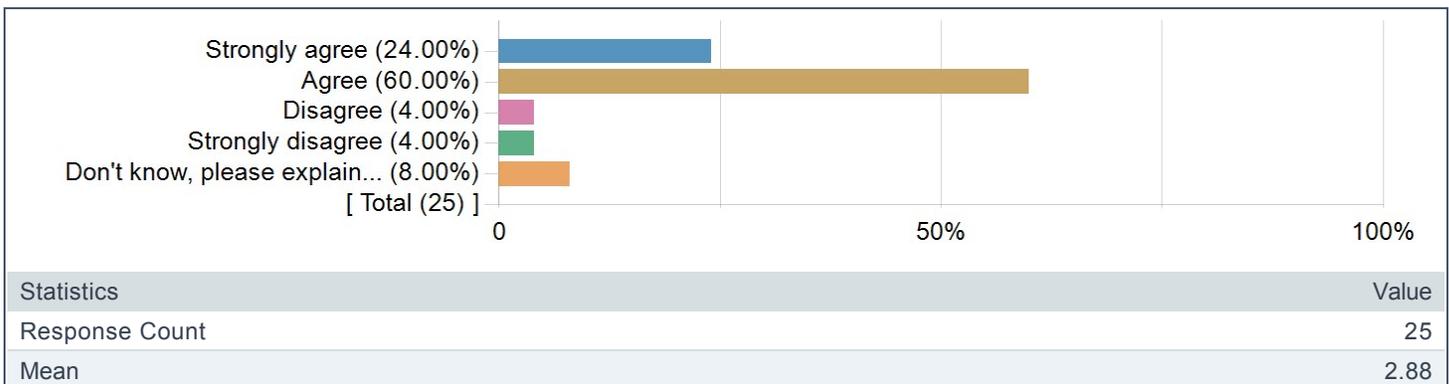

Please provide any additional comments about Senate Sub-Committee communications with the university community.

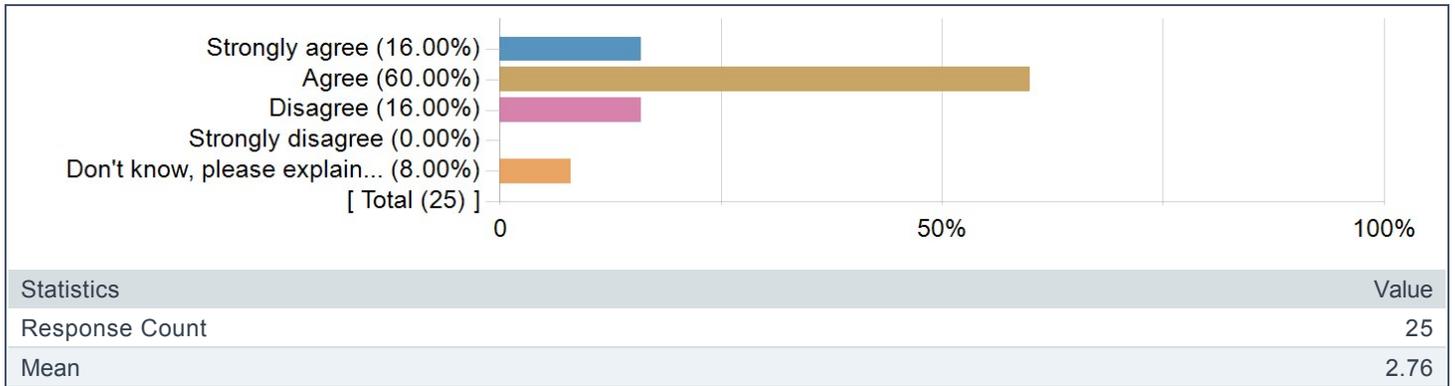

Survey Group
I think SAPPRC is still finding its feet so I am not sure how its work is perceived by the greater University Committee.
Communication with the community varies widely partly due to the willingness of the community members to engage. People are very busy...
I feel we were doing a better job at communicating key information, then fell off a little, and then brought it back.
As I am a new Senator, I do not have an answer to that question.
In my faculty, there are regular Senate reports at DAD and faculty meetings that inform and update faculty at the department level.

Providing a Forum on Academic Matters

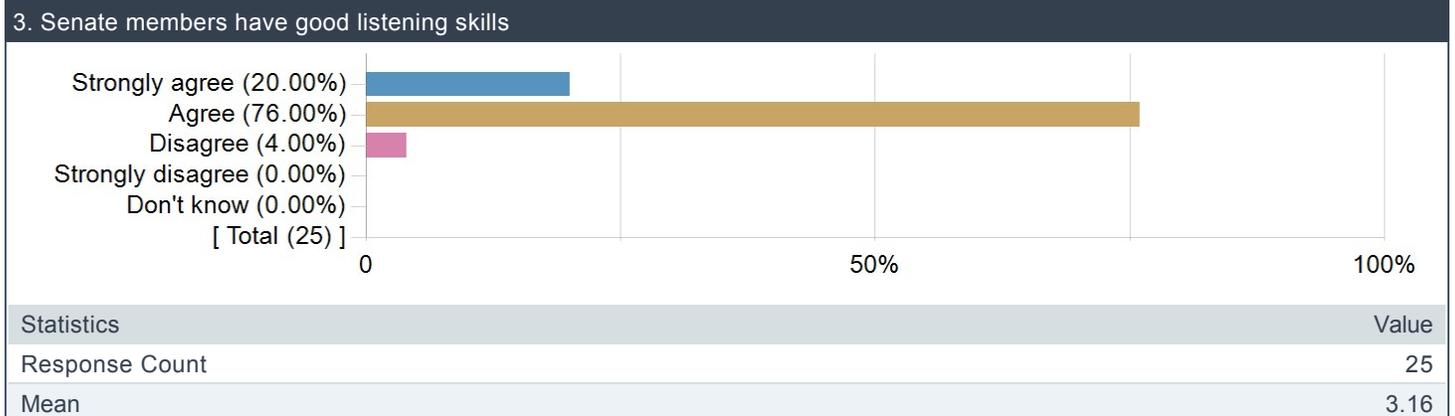

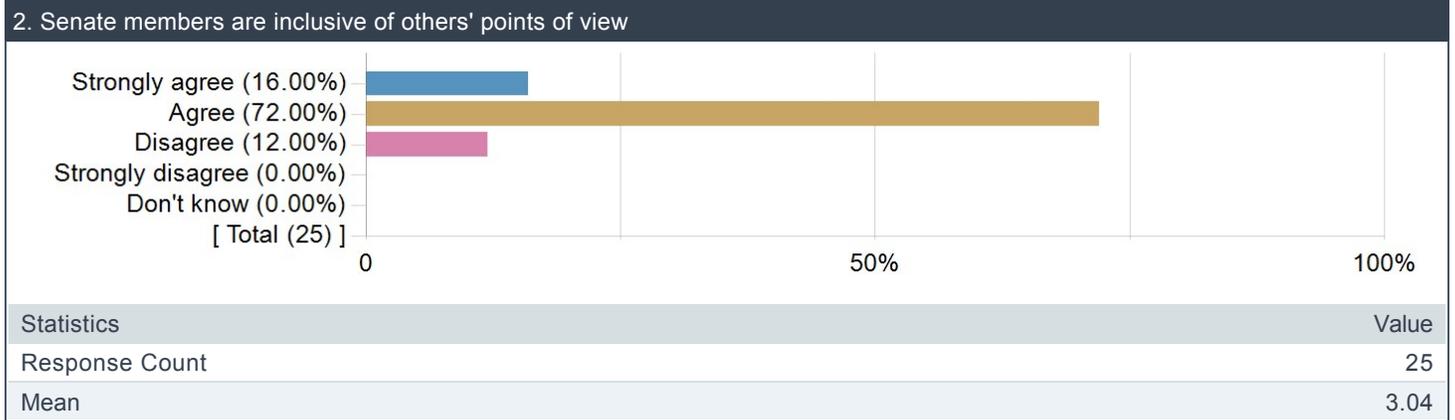

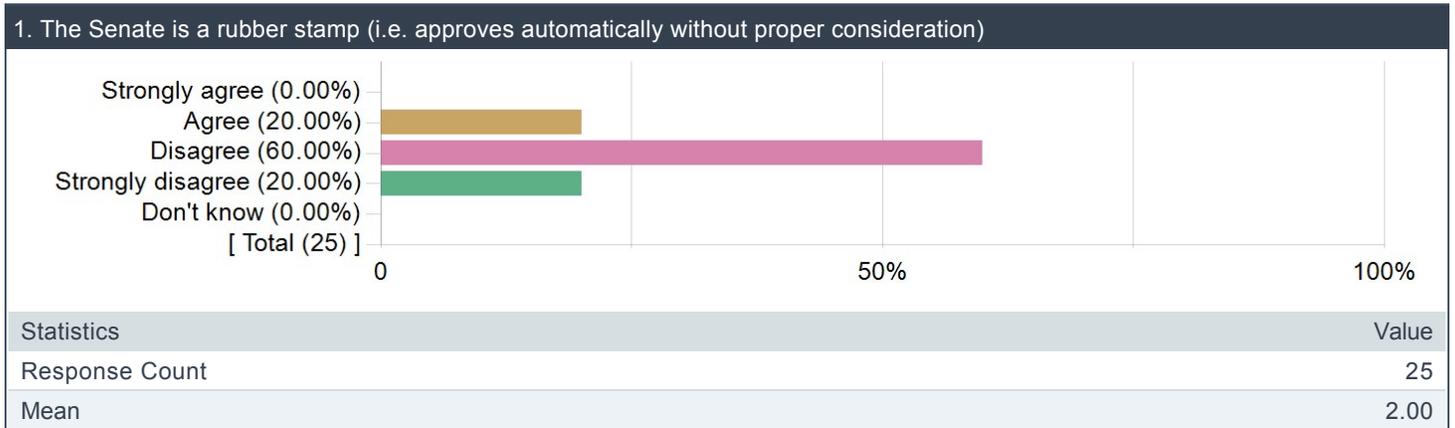

The Senate meetings provide effective discussions of academic governance issues facing the university.

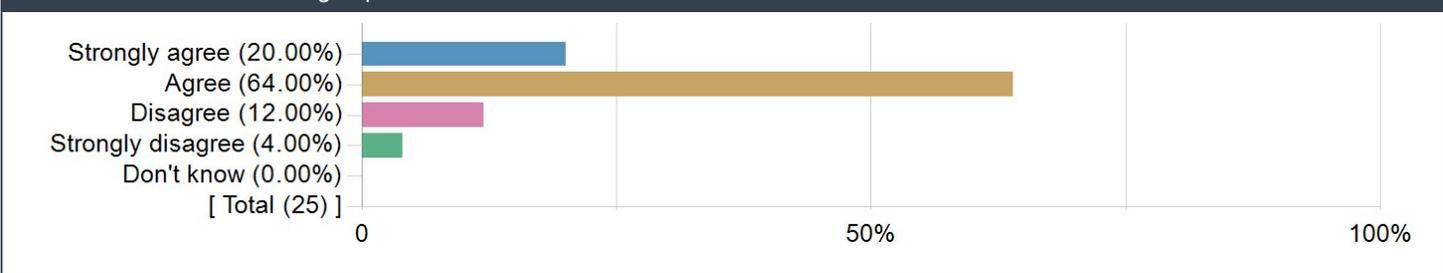

The Senate is effective at seeking and properly utilizing input from its constituencies.

In terms of how Senate meetings function, please answer the following:

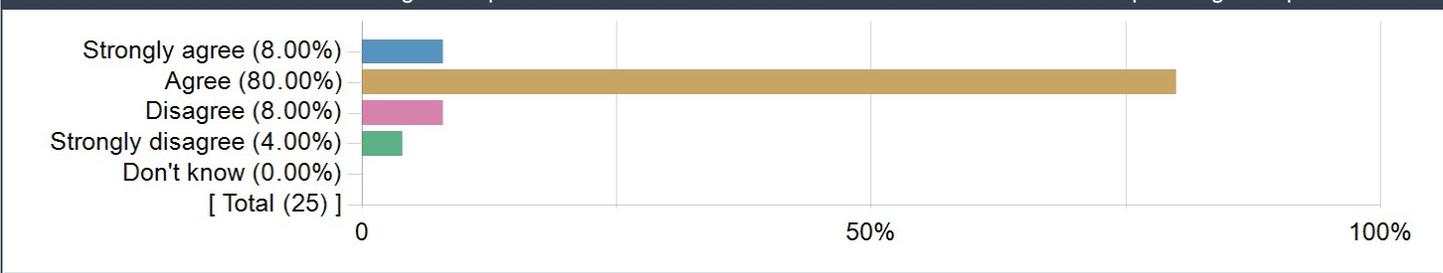

4. Senate members encourage open and free debate

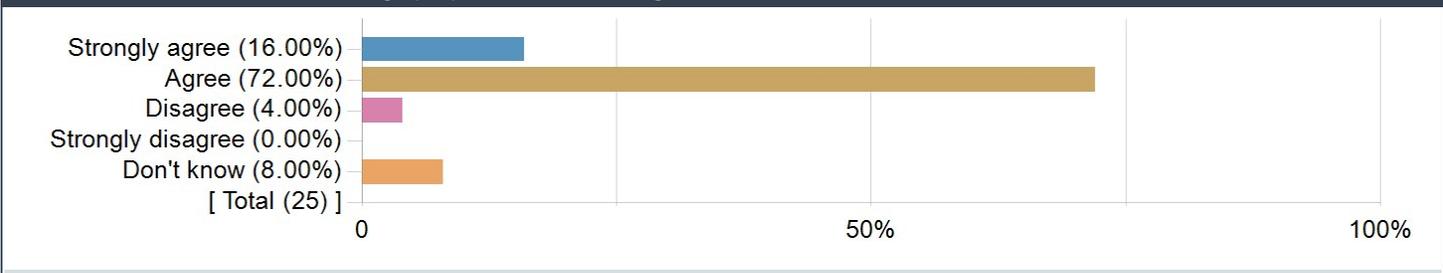

Statistics	Value
Response Count	25
Mean	3.00

5. Senate members create an inviting atmosphere where members and constituents feel comfortable expressing their points of view

Statistics	Value
Response Count	25
Mean	2.92

6. Senate members attend meetings prepared to discuss agenda items

Statistics	Value
Response Count	25
Mean	2.88

Please provide any additional comments about how the Senate provides a forum on academic matters.

Survey Group

I think Senators are reasonably prepared to discuss but are not eager to bring up discussion. They don't want to question. Also, a lot gets well accomplished at the committee level.

There may be more opportunity for faculty senators specifically to engage with their respective faculty and staff, though this is difficult with agendas only coming out a week before meetings.

An annual planning session could foster more proactive focus on academic matters including orientation to the role of senators.

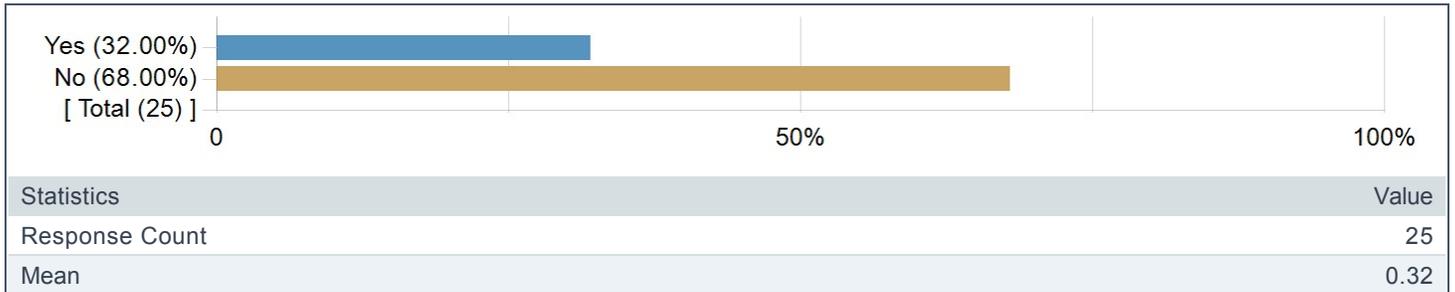

Having permanent guests is outside of the university act for senate membership and requires changes to the bylaws.

As I am a new Senator, I do not have an answer to that question.

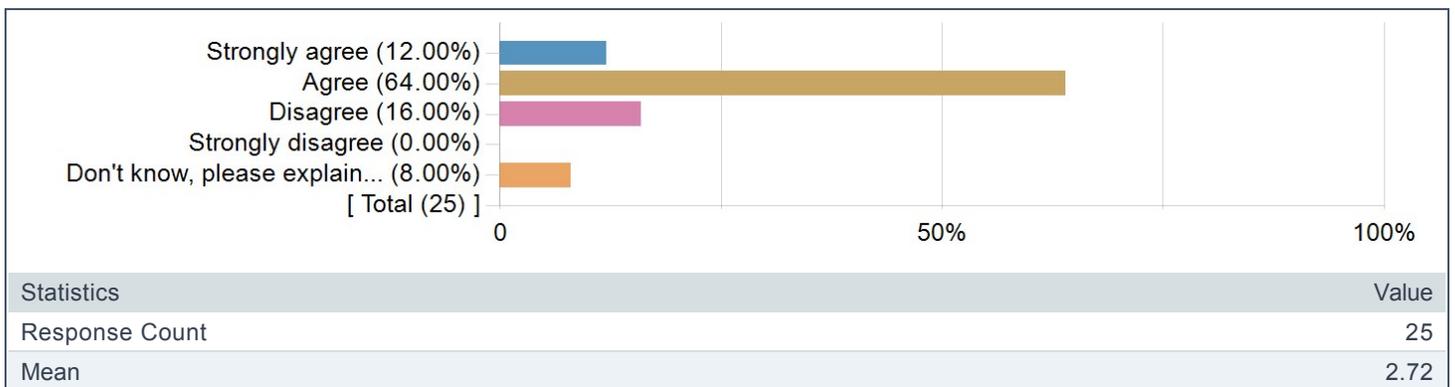

The discussion around the appointment of a new Chancellor discussion was not robust with only one candidate presented.

Orienting and Developing Senate Members and Ensuring Efficient and Effective Senate Operations

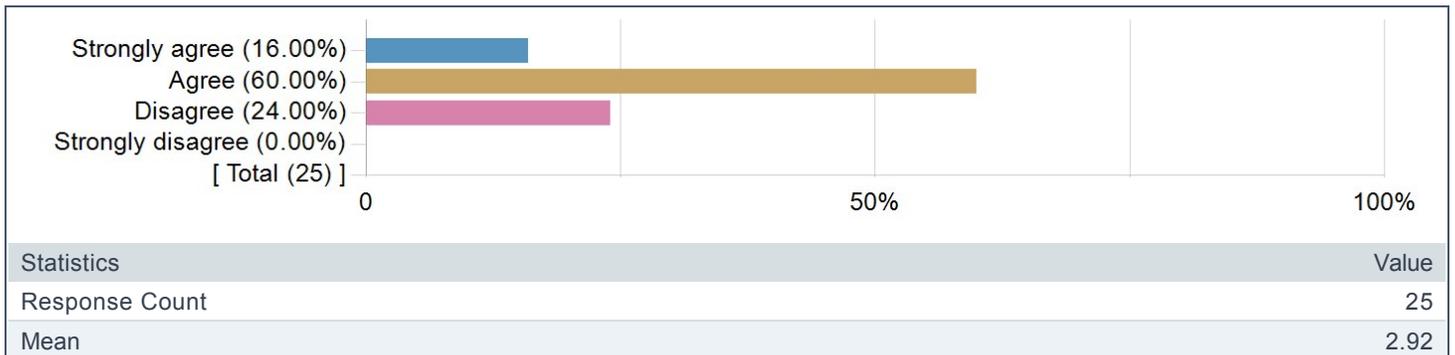

Are you a new Senator this year (last 12 months)?

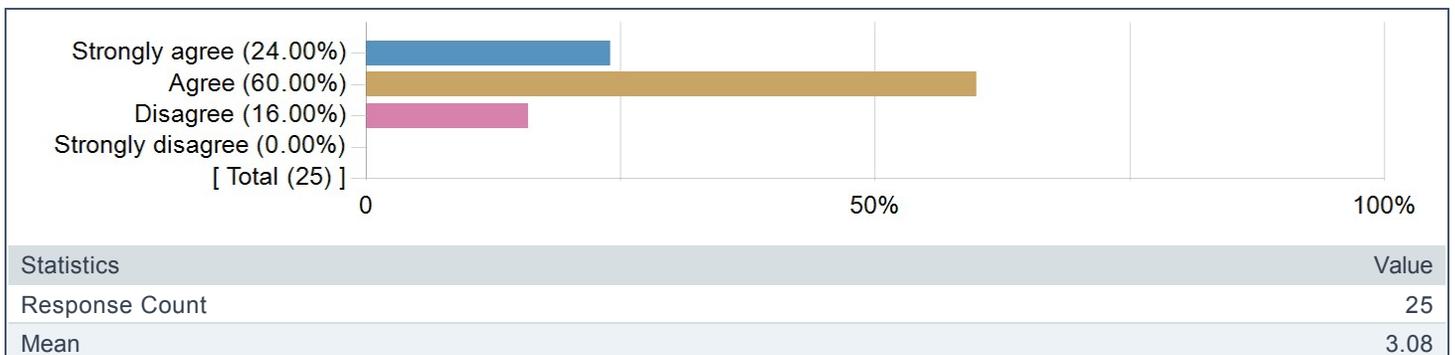

Orientation of new members is effective.

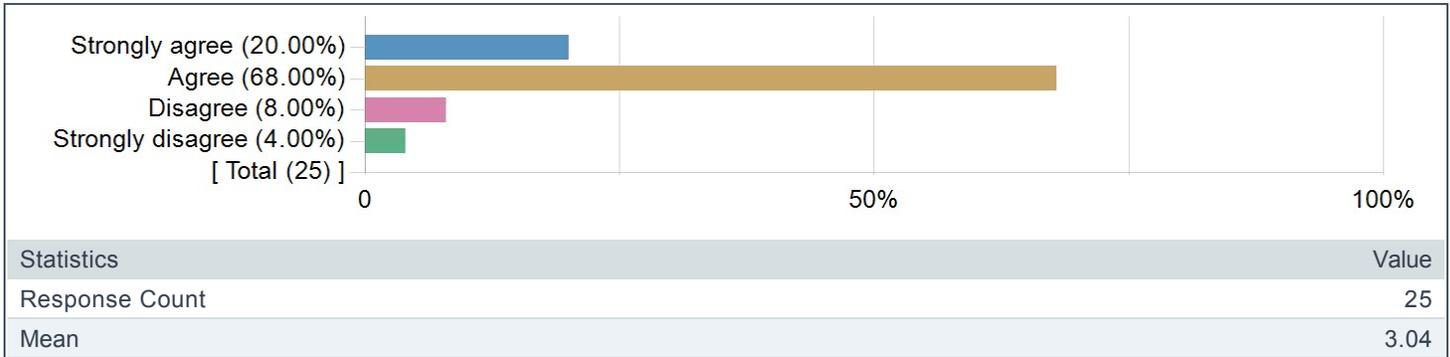

My orientation to the Senate was timely and thorough.

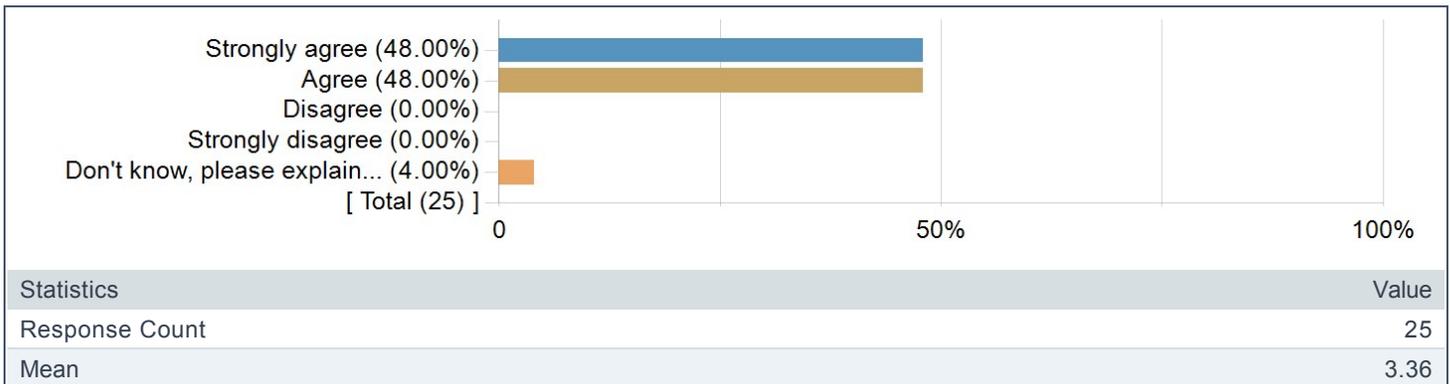

The time spent on agenda items is appropriate to the significance of the item.

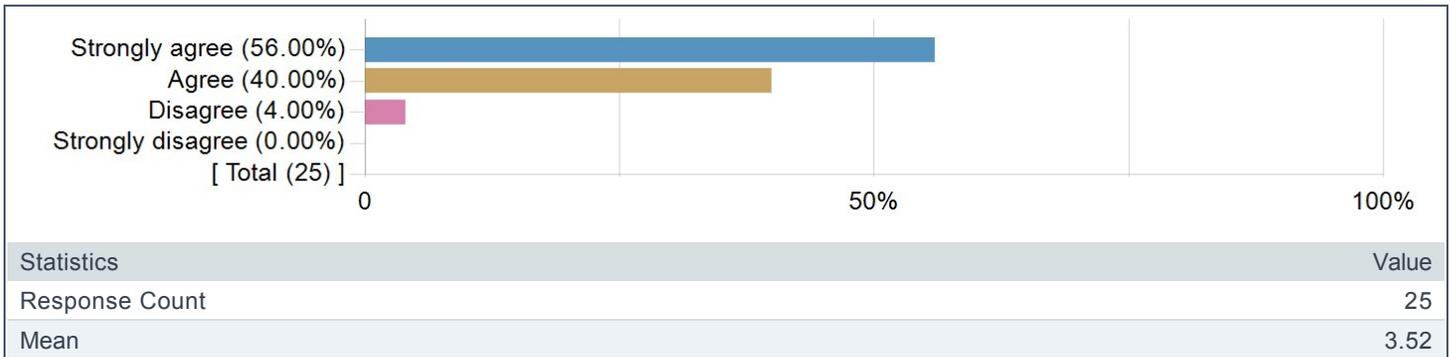

I have a clear understanding of Robert's Rule of Order, as a procedure to run meetings.

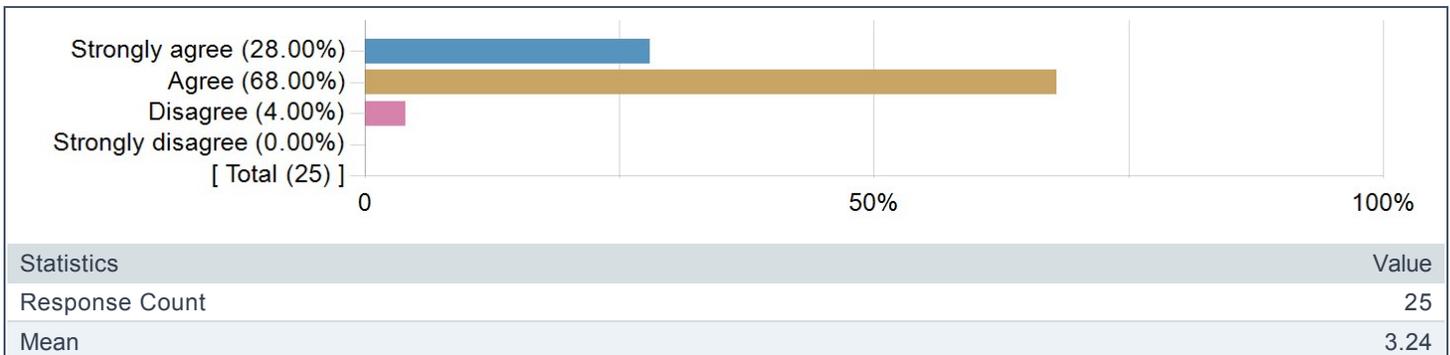

I think it is important that the Senate meetings closely follow Robert's Rules of Order.

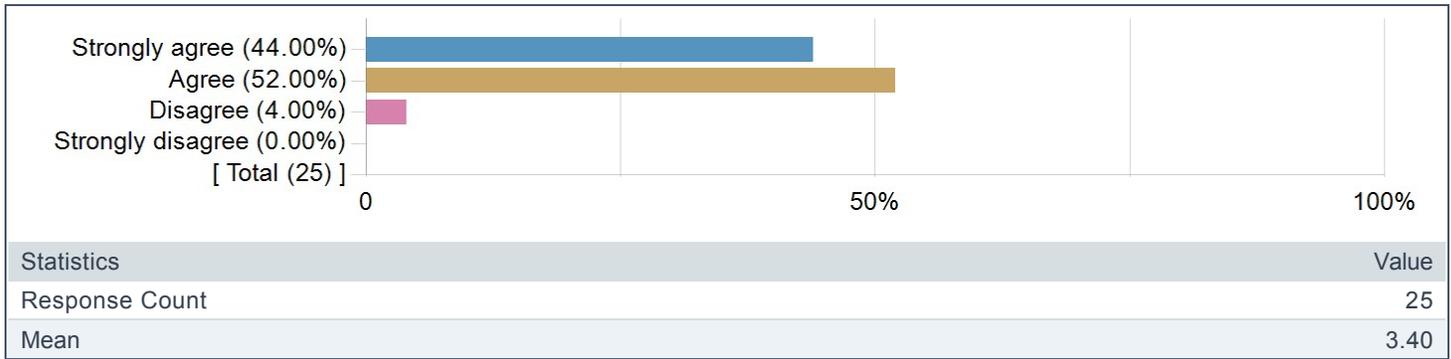

Members of Senate representing students are accorded the same respect as other Senate members.

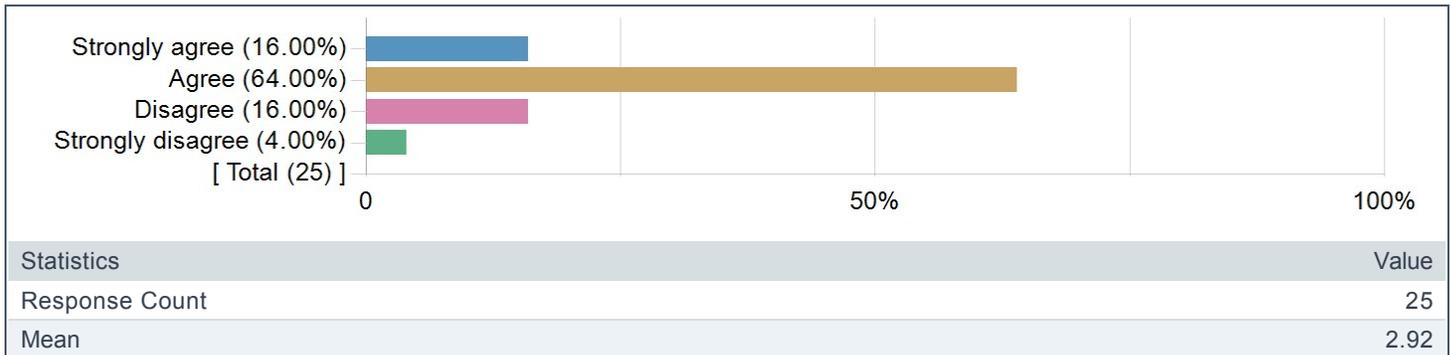

Senate members are given adequate time to present their views and positions.

Meetings are well organized.

There is adequate and robust discussion at Senate meetings.

Please provide any additional comments, information or suggestions that might be helpful in improving Senate operations.

Survey Group

More discussion is happening lately.

I acknowledge that online senate meetings may require additional time (versus face-to-face ones) but It is very hard for me to stay on track and attend in full when senate meetings now a days go beyond the 2 hour mark and almost 3 hours.

As I am a new Senator, I do not have an answer to that question.

Strangely enough, discussions have increased since we moved to remote delivery of Senate meetings. It has inspired a different kind of engagement and I think and improved engagement.

Depending on the presenter, not always certain if members feel comfortable speaking up, as if they feel that by speaking up it is viewed as a challenge to authority rather than discussion.

SENATE REPORT

AGENDA ITEM:	NWCCU Update
PURPOSE:	<input type="checkbox"/> Approval <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Information <input type="checkbox"/> Discussion
MEETING DATE:	August
PRESENTER:	Debbie Schachter

PURPOSE

To share information about the process to achieve the completion of CapU's Year-7 accreditation.

BACKGROUND

The Northwest Commission on Colleges and Universities (NWCCU) is an American accreditation body which provides assurance of the educational quality and institutional effectiveness. From the NWCCU website:

The principles underlying eligibility and levels of expectation are similar in their intent to:

- foster excellence through the development of criteria and guidelines for assessing educational quality and institutional effectiveness;
- encourage institutional improvement through continuous self-study and evaluation;
- ensure the educational community, the general public, and other organizations that an institution has clearly defined and appropriate educational objectives, has established conditions under which their achievement can reasonably be expected, appears in fact to be substantially accomplishing them, and is so organized, staffed, and supported that it can be expected to continue to do so; and
- provide counsel and assistance to established and developing institutions.

As reported at the August Senate meeting, the Year-7 evaluation report was submitted on August 7th. The University is now in the process of developing the peer institution site visit to take place online during October 19-21, 2020. The visiting institutions involve representatives from:

- Central Washington University
- Southern Oregon University
- University of Alaska at Anchorage
- University of Idaho
- University of Puget Sound
- Western Washington University

Over the two-day site visit, there will be structured meetings with representatives from across the University, including the Board, Senate, students, faculty, staff and administrators. In early September, an invitation will be distributed to Senators to hold the date for their meeting with the NWCCU. Constant Contact information will update the University community during September, while further information will be shared with the Senate at upcoming meetings.

RECOMMENDATION

THAT Senate accept as information this report from the NWCCU Accreditation Team.

SENATE REPORT

AGENDA ITEM: Concept Paper – Bachelor Degree in Costuming for Stage and Screen

Approval

PURPOSE: Information

Discussion

MEETING DATE: September 8, 2020

PRESENTER: Michael Thoma

PURPOSE

The Concept Paper for the Bachelor Degree in Costuming for Stage and Screen builds on the existing Diploma program and provides an opportunity for upper level studies to students, alumni and mid-level costuming professionals.

BACKGROUND

The proposed Bachelor Degree would build on the existing two-year Diploma program, which is highly regarded by industry for the skill levels of its graduates, and expand both material skills – such as textile science, costume construction, cutting and stitching, special effects costuming, advanced textile techniques, and costume design – as well as offer a deeper understanding of costuming through historical knowledge, aesthetic skills, visual storytelling, and a comprehensive understanding of the organization, structure and function of a costume team on film and theatre productions of a range of sizes. Innovative and creative skills would also be applied to research projects in costuming studies and costuming practice, such as First Nations culture and ecological sustainability, as well as explore interdisciplinary opportunities within the programs in Faculty of Fine and Applied Arts, such as Motion Picture Arts, Indigenous Digital Filmmaking, and Visual Effects, and in courses such as Production Design.

RECOMMENDATION:

- Motion: That Senate approve that the Concept Paper for the Bachelor Degree in Costuming for Stage and Screen be forwarded to the VP Academic and Provost.
